Subject: Primary Care Workforce Commission

Email sent on behalf of Primary Care Workforce Commission Team

Dear Colleague

The Secretary of State for Health, Rt Hon Jeremy Hunt MP, commissioned HEE to establish the independent Primary Care Workforce Commission, chaired by Martin Roland CBE, Professor of Health Services Research, University of Cambridge. Through a literature review, call for evidence, site visits and panel meetings, the Commission wanted to identify and highlight innovative models of primary care that will meet the future needs of patients and the NHS.

The report ‘The future of primary care: creating teams for tomorrow’ sets out the Commission’s thinking which includes calling for greater collaboration across organisations and a broader range of staff involved in the delivery of healthcare.

We have published the commission’s findings over the summer weeks so that interested parties have a chance to digest the information and recommendations. Discussion around the report is expected in September 2015.

Please forward this information to any colleagues who may be interested.

Kind regards
